It's the Details that Count

The focus is visual arts, cultural diversity, community enrichment & fostering art education among youth. In addition to the great art, there were art demonstrations, great food from local restaurants & live entertainment by Detroit Social Club Band, One Love Reggae Band, Sheila Landis Duo, Ken Mazur and Vladimir Gorodkin.

Bath Planet's Youth Art Competition, hosted by the Institute for the Arts & Education, encourages young artists in grades K-8 or ages 5-13 to create his/her original and personally handmade art which is publicly displayed at the art show the entire weekend. There was seven prizes with $250 in Youth Art Awards: one $100 Best of Youth Art; three $50 Youth Art Awards of Excellence; and three non-monetary Youth Awards of Distinction. Youths begin to learn the rules of being part of professional art show, and the program brings families to the event who may not otherwise attend. Budding artists are exposed to an entrepreneurship opportunity of doing something they love for a living, which is creating their art. The program is a very positive experience for everyone involved.
