Sponsored by Institute for the Arts & Education, the Youth Art Competition invited young artists in grades K-8 or ages 5-13 to submit their original and personally handmade artwork to be publicly displayed the entire weekend. The students competed for $250 in Cash Awards and were encouraged to speak with the art professionals in the show. These young artists were exposed to the entrepreneurship of doing something they love for a living – which is creating their art. The art show provided them with an unmatched learning art experience. Clay Slavery, Clay artist from Asheville, NC was the Youth Art Judge.
